other not long to seek of an answer, [c] By youi favour, sir,' said lie,' youi deeds answer your name Tighter than mine , for your name is Elmar; and you have marred all the elms in Fulham by lopping them '

He used for recreation to bowl in a garden , and Martin Marprelate thence takes this taunting scoff, that the bishop would cry, [c] Rub, rub, rub,' to his bowl, and when it was gone too far, say, [£] the devil go with it' , and then, saith Martin, the bishop would follow

When there was talk of dangers and rumours of war and invasion, then he was commonly chosen to preach in the Court, and he would do it in so cheerful a fashion as not only showed he had courage, but would put courage in others [f] Here is much doubt,' saith he,[c] of malum sub A^nlone, and our coal-prophets have prophesied that in exaltatione Lunae Leo jungetur Leonae The astronomers tell of a watery tngon , that great inundations of water foreshow insurrections of people and downfall of princes , but as long as Virgo is the ascendant with us we need fear of nothing, Deus nobiscum, qm± contia nos ? ' And for this the Queen would much commend him , yet would she not remove him It is noted as an ill fortune of hit> to have died Bishop of London, which eight before him in one hundred have not done, but been either preferred 01 deprived

2jth June PLAYS OF THE WEEK

The plays at the Rose Theatre this pa<^ week are The Ranger's Comedy, The Jew of Malta, Gutlack (twice), The Massacre at Pans, Gahaso

$tbjuly VIOLENCE IN WESTMINSTER

To-day Mr Edmund Wilton, was sitting in the parlour of Nicholas Nelson in Westminster, when

Mr George Barton, with a drawn dagger and a curtleaxe assaulted him, furiously throwing the dagger at him Thereupon Mr Wilton withdrew himself to a corner of the parlour, but Mr. Barton followed with drawn sword intending to have slain him But his adversary coming between him and the door, Mr Wilton turned and defended himself with his sword, and in self-defence gave Mr Barton a mortal blow of which he instantly died,